Points to Ponder

Don't be surprised if within the next few weeks a prominent soccer identity takes steps to secure his long term future at a major club. Has he heeded the warnings of stormy waters of the past few weeks?

The Brisbane City nets were a disgrace for last week's National League match against Footscray. In the warm-up City keeper Kim Wishart found three holes in the net through which a ball could easily pass — one of them just behind the post in the side-netting. The net at the other end also had to be patched before play commenced. Hopefully the situation will be rectified this week.

One club that lost a key game last weekend was showered with three cartons of beer cans after the match. It may have been the tonic to drown their sorrows, but the side had hardly played well in defeat.

Those on the park tell us that when four of the 18 lights at Acacia Ridge went out in last Saturday's vital game against Olympic United, referee Garth Goodwin was seriously considering abandoning the match. Olympic were leading 2-0 and their supporters would not have warmed to the idea, as thankfully a high-ranking QSF official pointed out. The Ridge can't be blamed for the partial blackout as it was a supply problem from outside the ground. But even when the four lights went out, the light was still better than some other Premier League grounds.

Mout Gravatt's Eric Thompson was a guest on 4EB Soccerworld last Saturday morning and when talking about Brian Styles and his threats to axe Coalstars forward Dave Wheeler, Thommo said: "If he wants to drop Wheeler he can drop him straight into my team."

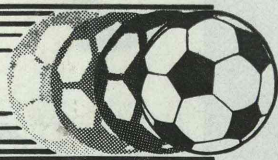

Thommo also mentioned that soccer was a game "for big men". Where does that leave Martin Kirsopp?

Grange Thistle may have the Dolan brothers, Steve and Jeff, in their squad, but the number of games in which both have played this year is yet to reach double figures. First Jeff was forced to miss matches because of a bowls commitment then the state tour to Fiji while Steve has been missing for the past week as he is in Mount Isa with his Brisbane North under 15 side.

FOR THE CLUBS

A willing delivery person is required to assist in the distribution of Go Soccer magazine each Thursday afternoon during August. The person will need their own vehicle and will be required to deliver the magazines to the southside Ampol garage depots. Anyone interested in the temporary position is urged to contact Geoff Stead on 52 6345 (w) or 343 1469 (h) as soon as possible.

On Monday July 15, Rochedale Rovers under 14 Div. 1 will hold a Sportsman's Night to help Miss Soccer entrant Jane Cootes. The function will be held at the clubhouse at Underwood Park. The concept is a father-son affair. Boys must be aged 14 years or older. The Sportsman's panel will include cricket Test umpire Mel Johnson and former Socceroo Col Bennett among others. Dress is casual and a hot supper will be provided and a lucky door prize will be on offer. For further details or tickets contact Peter Walklate on 341 9560 or Contact the club.

Annerley will hold an "end of first round fancy dress supper dance" on Saturday, July 13 at the Greenslopes Bowls Club. Tickets are $8 per person and club officials are expecting a big night. Everybody is welcome and there will be prizes for costumes. A good supper will be provided. Anyone wanting further details should contact an Annerley official.

A special dinner will be held in conjunction with the Harry Linning Under 12 carnival tonight (July 4) at Acacia Ridge Soccer Club. For further details contact John Trew or the club on 277 1541

10 YEARS SERVICE

Queensland Soccer Federation secretary Alan Vessey this week celebrates 10 years at Perry Park.

Since he came to the QSF on July 2, 1975, Vessey has helped establish soccer as a keen administrative rival to the other codes and sports throughout the state.

His reputation for sound administration and astute handling of soccer affairs is well-known and indeed the envy of other organisations.

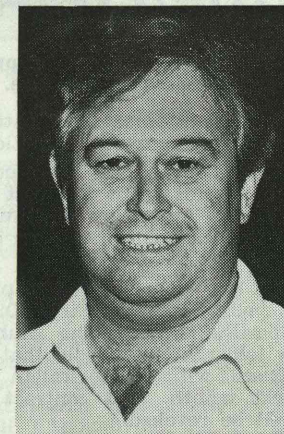

Vessey, 40, came to Perry Park from Victoria where he worked as an office equipment representative. And in the 10 years since the QSF office has never worked better.

One person who knows only too well Vessey's contribution to Queensland soccer is QSF president Ald. Ian Brusasco.

"He has been an extremely good employee of the federation and treats everyone equally and courteously, which is a great thing," Brusasco said.

"He is held in an extremely high regard by all state federations and indeed the Australian Soccer Federation. He is prompt and never forgetful and has been a fine ambassador for our state."

During his 10 years, Vessey has seen Queensland soccer undergo several major changes. He witnessed the introduction of the National League, the formation and dismantling of the State League and the biggest restructuring of the federation since its inception.

● QSF SECRETARY ALAN VESSEY

And because of his fine skills and diplomacy, and excellent working relationship with Brusasco, soccer has always emerged the winner. In many ways, in the past decade Alan Vessey has helped to make Queensland soccer.

And this week Queensland soccer, and particularly all those who work closely with the QSF, say "THANK-YOU ALAN VESSEY". We look forward to another friendly 10 years.

CLUBS BATTLE FOR SURVIVAL

By GREG RUSSELL

Some of Queensland's oldest clubs are set to fall by the wayside as crippling overheads and dwindling support begin to take their toll.

The QSF management committee has been told last week that First Division club Westside was close to being wound up. And several other clubs, some in high divisions may not front again in 1986. Westside, the former Budapest Grovely side whose most famous son is former NSL star Peter Tokesi, was founded in 1963. With the backing of Brisbane's Hungarian community the club prospered for many years.

But in recent times as the ethnic backing of the club drifted away, only a hard core remained to do all the work. The guiding light in past seasons has been president Mr. Tom Tavier who informed the QSF last week that he had resigned and in doing so has virtually declared the club would cease.

Westside had teams in Division One and Reserves this year, but the latter has withdrawn. The Hungarian community is rallying to save Westside and have asked for a 14 day period of grace during which the club's first team will still meet it's commitments.

It is no secret that North Brisbane, the former Polonia club, is fighting hard to maintain it's existence while Booval Stars also are facing lean times.

The QSF is doing all it can to assist the struggling clubs and are monitoring some on an almost weekly basis.

GO SOCCER EDITORIAL

By Editor, GEOFF STEAD

The case of Young Soccerroo skipper Andrew Bernal is indeed a delicate one for the Australian Soccer Federation.

And it certainly has highlighted an area which needs urgent attention.

Bernal has learned all his soccer in Australia. He has spent the past three years at the Australian Institute of Sport in Canberra, at the expense of the Australian taxpayers.

Now he has been offered a playing contract with Spanish First Division club, Sporting Gijon. The club has virtually told the 19-year-old that if he goes to Russia with the Australian Youth team next month, that contract offer could well be revoked.

Bernal has become an innocent pawn, being manipulated by a powerful overseas club. The Australian Soccer Federation is being insulted.

One can understand Bernal's decision to withdraw from the Youth squad. He has an ambition to become a professional footballer in Europe and this could well be his chance of a lifetime.

ACROSS MY DESK . . .

By QSF Secretary, ALAN VESSEY

At the halfway stage of the soccer year, now is the time to start planning for 1986.

Both the federation and the clubs should begin tossing around ideas and putting forward suggestions which ultimately will make for a smoother running 1986 season.

In the federation's case we must begin to examine things like our representative program in 1986. This is going to be slightly clouded next year until we know what is happening with the World Cup.

Hopefully, for Australia's sake, our annual match with New South Wales will be difficult to schedule.

The federation must also look at the prospect of another tour and we must begin to look at other south-east Asian and Pacific nations and see what is available in those areas.

For the clubs, too often the planning aspect is looked at in December when the football season is finished. But the

But does a club have the right to deny a youngster the opportunity to play for his country in a world youth championship? For Bernal, the opportunity will never arise again.

While any success Bernal achieves in Spain will eventually reflect back on Australia, will it outweigh any bad publicity which could arise if the Young Soccerroos, minus Bernal, do not perform in Russia?

Australian youngsters should not be denied the right to try their fortune overseas. But we should not become merely a nursery for overseas clubs at the expense of our own success on the international stage.

Youngsters should be tied to the ASF for the duration of a championship bid.

It should be remembered that the Australian public will always warm quicker to a soccer player dazzling the world in green and gold, rather than if he was in any other colours.

time to begin planning for the next season is right now.

Clubs should begin to look at the aspect of players, their performances to date and their desirability for next year. Clubs should start looking at players they may want for next year and make projections towards the cost of attaining them and budget accordingly.

Now is the time to begin the planning of any capital improvements for future years and become familiar with what grants are available and how to apply for them. It is also a good time to make initial approaches to sponsors or to begin the groundwork for major fundraising drives. Overall, it comes down to the long and short term objectives of each club. If a club is aiming for a higher division it must begin making plans to achieve that on the field and off the field.

BILLY'S BULLETIN BOARD

Training on a Monday night will be a thing of the past now that SBS Television is in Brisbane.

Training on any night should be a thing of the past for that matter. But I thought the Olympic Airways Soccer League program last Monday night was brilliant and I hope a few non-soccer supporters begin to watch it. I think the program is equal to any football presentation in Australia.

The good thing about the program is that it will begin to educate Brisbane soccer followers and they will know all about visiting teams before they arrive. I guess I came up pretty big on the first program screened in Brisbane but at one stage I thought the interview would never get done. It took Les Murray six takes to get it right and I thought I was supposed to be the nervous one.

But that aside, I think Les gives a very smooth and professional touch to the show. And just when we were all getting used to Bobby Buchanan.

I went and watched Acacia Ridge play Olympic last weekend and ended up with egg on my face — and a few splashes of something else courtesy of a few lunatics.

Unfortunately the Ridge never made a game of it and Olympic thoroughly deserved their victory. And if performances on the night were a guide, maybe Ronnie Millman was right. I guess as a school teacher he must know his three R's — readin', writin' and relegation.

I was disappointed to learn down at the Ridge that the game was Nev Cruickshanks last for the club. He is heading off to Europe for a holiday then will retire from playing on his return.

Nev is a valuable player and will be hard to replace. I always remember the help he gave me when I first broke into the Ridge First team. I was a leftback and he was playing left midfield and I always marvelled at some of the things he did. Garth Wilson was in the team as well, I thought he was old then, but I see he has donned his boots again to turn out of the Ridge Colts. I thought it was under 19, not 90.

Billy McDermott was all the rage down at Underwood last weekend, except among Rochedale supporters. He is certainly fast and congratulations to him for getting the four goals. But before everyone starts over-reacting and saying he should be in the National League, I would like to see him in the Premier League again.

I think the gap between the Intermediate League and the Premier League is a bit bigger than some realise and I would expect there would be a few players at Ipswich, Mount Gravatt and Thisle that would fancy themselves to score four goals in the lower division.

TED JEFFERIES . . .

TALKING TOUGH SOCCER

It is hard to sympathise with referee Gordon Nicholson. I think he brings on himself much of the controversy that clouds nearly every NSL game he handles.

He just asked for trouble in giving Brisbane City a penalty last week. Luciano Fabrizio undoubtedly took a dive and made a mess of it as well. Even the most diehard of City supporters shook their heads when Nicholson fell for the ploy.

The decision set the tone of the match from then on and everything else, which normally would have been brushed over, suddenly became a huge farce.

Talking to Nicholson afterwards, it is obvious he is well aware of the rules of the game, how to administer them and how to display to the crowd the meaning of his decisions. But he is yet to master the art of gaining the respect of the players. The other refereeing controversy of last weekend was Bill Monteverde's decision to disallow a goal in the St. George-Canberra match he refereed in Sydney. On that occasion, and at the other end of the ground when a goal was awarded after a goalmouth scramble, Monteverde took the advice of his well-positioned linesman.

And yet he was still criticised. What could have happened if he had ignored his linesman? No doubt the outcry would have been even louder.

NOT JUST BLACK AND WHITE

THE REFEREES' POINT OF VIEW . . .

by "WHISTLER"

Who should control the top games each week, who should referee the Cup final games and the grand final?

That's the question asked not only by the federation, clubs and the media, but also by referees.

The problem it seems is everybody thinks the top five or six referees should control the top Premier and National games in Brisbane each week. That's only the first problem. The second is who rates the top five or six referees at any given moment?

Some would argue that the top National referees should always rate at the top. But that is not always the case.

I have mentioned before that there are referees' inspectors checking and marking referees each week. These marks are tallied and it can be seen whose performances have been at a consistently good level. Only last year a referee outside of the National League was voted Referee of the Year for his onfield performances. But because he wasn't a "National League referee", he was not considered good enough by the federation for the Premier League grand final.

Many referees, especially those at the top level, think that the top six guys should also get the top games each week. Those on the fringe of the top level don't agree, but their chance to go out and referee the top level is severely limited.

The answer has to be a balance and the clubs have a right to expect the best referee available to control the top matches as well as acknowledging that promising officials have to be given top games to prove themselves.

Every club and player has their own opinion who are the top referees. Each referee is different and clubs react in their own way to that official. It would be interesting to poll clubs in each division and see who they rate as the top referee in each grade.

I wonder how far different it would be from the referees' rating scheme?

Maybe the Go Soccer should conduct an end of season poll and award a trophy, if a sponsor could be found, to the top referee in each grade.

The results could be interesting!

REDLANDS KEEP BATTLING

While Wynnum has grabbed many of the Intermediate League headlines this season, spare a thought for their bayside rivals Redlands.

After narrowly missing promotion to the premier League last year and winning through to the Intermediate League grand final, many tipped Redlands as promotion favourites this season.

But it has been a tough year for Bill Bryant and his side and they have done well to stay among the competition leaders, although not threatening for promotion. It is almost hard to believe but Redlands this season have lost nine players from last year's Grand Final squad. They include Dave Large who retired, Craig Dangerfield who transferred to Lions, Stephen Marley who had study commitments this year, John Coffey who was forced out because of work, Kai Schimkatt who transferred to Logan City and Greg Rafter, Peter Gammie, Mark Colley and Tony Burley who are all injured.

Rafter and Colley injured knees, Gammie did a calf muscle while Burley badly dislocated his shoulder and the 23-year-old has been advised not to play in goal again. Redlands also just recently lost Barry Kelso, who is on loan to Taringa for the remainder of the season.

New faces this year have included Steve Perry, Alan Collins and Shane Cooper and although they all have given mammoth efforts, they hardly are cover for nine players.

Redlands have been forced to develop their youth and make this season a consolidation year. President Dick Karremann has told Bryant that anything that is achieved this season will be a bonus. He knows that within a few years the kids will take Redlands back into the top league. The average age of the club's Intermediate League is 23.5 years, the Reserves 18.3 and the Sixth Division 22.

"There is certainly plenty of potential at the club and I have been delighted with the way everyone has rallied this season in the face of all our setbacks," Bryant said.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir,

I am trying to compile facts and information about Australian soccer clubs with the view to publishing a book set out in the style of a dictionary. This book would include clubs from all six states plus Northern NSW.

In Queensland I am mainly concerned with clubs from the Premier and Intermediate Leagues. I have contacted all such clubs in those divisions asking for details and so far have had replies from Kingsridge, Newmarket, North Star, Rochedale, Taringa and the two NSL clubs.

However I urge the others to forward details. The type of information I am seeking includes details of club strip, copies of club badges or logos, records of past winners and honours.

I am sure such a book would be of a benefit to local and overseas players and fans and I look forward to co-operation from Queensland in my project.

Dear Sir,

Many, including myself, reckon that soccer took it's biggest step backwards when the State League was disbanded. The excitement of the clashes involving Townsville and later in the competition Bundaberg added an extra spice to the game. I know the problems that caused the demise of the league but the loser has been the game of soccer especially in the country.

Every year we have State title competitions in all age groups except in senior football. Why can't we have a competition that involves the senior sides of all the State Federations including a side from South East Qld. made up of Premier League players? The nearest we have now is the Ampol Cup but this eliminates many of the country sides in knockout rounds before the competition proper.

The championship could be held in a different centre each year over a long weekend. I know soccer could not attract a sponsor for an ongoing State League but how about someone who would pick up the cost for a single competition?

ANNERLEY ANALYSIS

By BILL WILLIAMS

INTERMEDIATE LEAGUE: Annerley v Redlands

Nine points all and an important game started badly for us when Brian Hudson was injured in the first minutes and had to be replaced.

It took almost 30 minutes before we had a positive shot at goals and David Crane's left foot attempt was wide. A free kick shortly afterwards was driven into the wall, with no result.

We looked like getting on top before half time and shots from Phil Mulvey, Phil Hall and Rickie Magnan were close to opening the score.

Ten minutes into the second half brought the best football of the match when David Crane on the right and Rickie Magnan again forced finger touch saves from the Redlands keeper. With 10 to go we failed to score from a scramble on the line and it looked as though nil-all would be the final result, or maybe one goal either way would win it.

Just before full time we got our goal from a corner when David Ingram finally headed in from right on the goal line. Not a very inspiring game, but on the play, we were the team that deserved to win.

In our other divisions, the reserve grade keep in the lead with a convincing 4-0 win. The 4th Division, our other team on top of the table also won 4-2 after being down 2-0; our 6th lost 1-0 by a penalty but are improving with every game.

HEARD FROM THE FREEWAY

Our new alternate strip of red shirts has caused quite a bit of discussion within the club, although they are yet to be used. There is a definite division for or against the strip, even among good friends. Some of the light-hearted banter exists between two of our most respected members. Round One went to the "Blue" supporter who presented the other with a bright red T-shirt marked with slogans all over, including "Charlton Athletic 1901". Round Two went the other way when a certain boat had its stern painted red with the words "SS Red Red Robin" in white letters. We wonder what may come next? The mind boggles.

Recently we played Sunnyside on our field in Intermediate League and reserves. This note is to compliment their sometimes criticised supporters. They were as well behaved as any we have had and did not leave the place in a mess as have some other clubs. And it was not as though they had winners' smiles as they lost both games. Many stayed on after the games and we look forward to the return matches

Bob Marshall, one of Annerley's most popular players ever, has made a return after three years "retirement". He left the field hurt against Brisbane City with a badly swollen ankle. After treating the injury with ice packs all afternoon, he said he wasn't going home to tell his wife until the swelling went down.

Asked when that would be, he said: "About half past Monday".

We are pleased to announce that 18-year-old Vicki Kerr has been selected as Miss Annerley 1985. Her bright smile and friendly personality are becoming well known around our club. Plenty of encouragement and support are needed for her fund-raising efforts and we thank members and supporters in anticipation.

MEMO TO VISITING CLUBS: When you visit us in any division, you need not bring food or drinks. Our canteen would be as good, if not better, than any in Brisbane. There is a wide range of soft drinks, bread rolls, hot chips, tea and coffee etc which is guaranteed to satisfy any appetite or thirst. The bar is well equipped and friendly service costs no more.

By the way, our barbeque after home games in Intermediate League should not be missed. Steak, chips and salad on a plate or hamburgers etc round off the afternoon, no matter who has won the football. The prices are so low it's a steal.

Enthusiastic Annerley supporter Scott Spencer is expected back in Australia after his world trip on August 1. He is presently preparing for this year's Grand Final night party by relaxing in the Greek Islands. Former Annerley fullback Jim Wiltshire looks like staying on in England — perhaps still waiting for that elusive call from West Ham.

Scorers:

The pressure is really back on Acacia Ridge after their 0-2 loss to Olympic last Saturday night.

The loss meant the Ridge dropped back down to bottom place on goal difference, and the neck and neck battle with Olympic to avoid relegation is on again. Every point from here on will be vital and it would not surprise if Brian Addison adopts the tactic that the Ridge start with a point and should be able to finish with one.

With the table so tightly packed Thistle can afford nothing but a win to stay in the top four and definitely must take two if they hope to have a chance of pegging back leaders Lions. The Grange club will again be without midfielder Steve Dolan, unless he can get back from the under 15 titles in Mt. Isa in time for the Saturday evening clash. But Dolan was absent when Thistle played a draw with Ipswich. Home team should take the points.

Scorers:

Ipswich United are the reigning soccer champions of their city.

They claimed that title when they beat Coalstars 3-2 in the second round in April. But each new derby puts the title back on the line and previous results count for nothing.

Coalstars though have a loss at Bundamba last year to avenge in addition to that first round defeat and are keen to maintain the winning form they finally found against North Star last weekend.

Former national youth representative Mark Brusasco found the net against North Star and that could be more significant than some realise. Last year when Brusasco fired, Easts won. It would not surprise if he similarly motivates Coalstars.

Ipswich are waiting for the treble, but then they have been this close many times in recent years. They will have to win this game if that dream is to be a reality, but Coalstars may just have found the right combination to turn the tables on their rivals.

PREMIER LEAGUE — ROUND 11
EASTS v NORTH STAR

Heath Park, Sunday, 2.45 p.m.

Referee: LEE HANNA

This match is a replay of the recent Ampol Cup quarter-final which North Star won 2-1.

That Perry Park match was a closely fought affair and everything suggests so too will this game.

The two clubs played a scoreless draw at O'Callaghan Park in April which again emphasises that there is very little between the two teams.

Their coaches, North Star's Iain Fagan and Easts' John Sime, are stern disciplinarians and demand utmost concentration from their sides — As well as 100 percent effort.

Both sides are level pegging with the Tigers holding a slight goal difference advantage. They are only just off the pace in terms of semi-final places and neither side can afford to drop a point for fear of falling off the back of the pack.

At home, Easts always seem to have an edge, but things are likely to be very close again and a draw would not surprise.

Mount Gravatt coach Eric Thompson still maintains his side can retain the Premier League Premiership — this game will test that claim

If the Hawks are to peg Lions' four points lead they must beat the Richlands side themselves — not rely on someone else to do it.

Mount Gravatt are beginning to play their way into form although last week's draw with Taringa saw some old habits rear their heads. The goals aren't coming like they used to for the Hawks and it is significant that midfielder Martin Kirsoff is among the side's leading scorers. Lions too faltered a little last week when they played a scoreless draw with Easts and the constant chopping and changing of the side is not helping. But coach Paul Laslo remains confident that he has the depth and ability in his pool of players to hold onto the premiership lead.

But Brett Beves has been in fine form and Lions could remain on course for the title with another win.

PREMIER LEAGUE — ROUND 11
OLYMPIC UTD. v TARINGA

Goodwin Park, Sunday, 2.45 p.m.

Referee: PETER MURRAY

Just when everyone had started to write-off Olympic they have come back with a surge.

The former grand final winners were untroubled to beat Acacia R. in their relegated-saving clash at Proud Field last weekend and no doubt would have grown in confidence as a result of that win.

Olympic are still not out of the woods and Taringa looms as an opponent they could well beat. Rovers coach Iain Kesson has been working desperately in recent weeks to halt the slide which has seen his team tumbled from the top of the table to third last and to hold Mt. Gravatt to a draw last week would have been a reassuring result. The rough Goodwin Park pitch will do little to encourage attractive football and the desperate attitude of these two sides will ensure there is no fancy footwork.

A sharing of the points is on the cards.
