IT'S A CLASSIC CUP FINAL

Plucky Intermediate League side Sunnyside stands between North Star becoming the first club in nearly 20 years to retain the Ampol Cup.

The two clubs will clash, almost certainly at soccer headquarters, on Sunday, August 25 in the Cup final.

They earned the right to play in the climax to the $15,000 statewide knock-out competition after winning their semi-finals in a thrilling and well-supported semi-final program at Perry Park last weekend.

Sunnyside beat country hopefuls Bundaberg 1-0 on a Marcello "Ringo" Mejais goal while North Star ended Ipswich United's treble hopes, and kept their own alive, when they advanced on a David Currie goal.

The final now is a classic Minnow v Giant Cup affair.

Sunnyside, under the coaching of Tony Lowndes, are only moderately placed in the Intermediate League while North Star, guided by player coach Iain Fagan, are bidding for a Premier League semi-final place.

North Star won the trophy for the first time in the club's history when, as underdogs, they beat hot favourites Lions in the final minutes.

Stars will go into this year's final as the favourites, although no club has retained the Ampol Cup since Hellenic won it five years in a row in the early 60's.

For Sunnyside, it is the furthestest the club has ever advanced in the competition and the Perry Park ground is certain to be packed to the rafters with the club's enthusiastic Croatian supporters — supporters who have been praised by various clubs in the Intermediate League this season.

It will be a classic Cup confrontation — and no doubt a fitting finale to the state's longest running knockout football competition.

Points to Ponder

Russell Stewart's good form of late and his total dominance of the midfield against Adelaide City recently was none so more demonstrated when he took on NSL Player of the Year Sergio Melta, played a beautiful "nutmeg" and strolled off towards the goal.

Mount Gravatt president Paul Lonton showed his professionalism and the club's sporting nature in two letters this week following Noel Davis' leg break at Dittmer Park recently. Lonton wrote to Lions to assure the club there was no ill-feeling and thanked Calvin Daunt and Mick Mulvey for their after-match enquiries at the hospital. The referees also received praise from Lonton who said of John Broughton — "he enhanced the game as an exciting encounter for both sets of supporters." The Hawks president, in a separate letter to the referees federation, went on to thank the match officials for the help and concern after Davis' accident. Well done Paul and Mount Gravatt.

A very prominent referee is understood to be in two minds about continuing at NSL level next year, and has indicated he may "retire" to Premier League and lower only. The competent whistler may be a little disillusioned that he has missed out on long overdue recognition.

Who was the Intermediate League player who turned up at his appeal last week with his wife? And a few are wondering how he managed to get his cause promoted in one of the weekend papers.

A lot was made last weekend of Jim Hermiston's telephone substitution. But not all at the ground were in favour of passing the message on and some reckoned that as the man at the ground, and the one in charge on the day, Tony Buesnel should have been left to make his own decisions.

If the 2 National League clubs are looking for a player to bolster their squads next year, they would be well advised to have a good look at Bundaberg's Peter Kelly. At 23, he's a great prospect and probably the most consistent sweeper in Queensland this season. If Frank Farina, Manis Lomons and Ray Junna are examples, Lions and City scouts won't recognise Kelly's talents until he is snapped up by a southern club.

Will QSF officials turn out in force this weekend to watch their Premier League game at Richlands, bearing in mind the likely presence of a big contingent of officials representing a rival sponsor?

ARTIFICIAL TURF CONSIDERED

QSF REVEALS PLANS

An exclusive by Go Soccer chief reporter, GREG RUSSELL

The Queensland Soccer Federation Trust is examining the viability of converting Perry Park to an artificial surface.

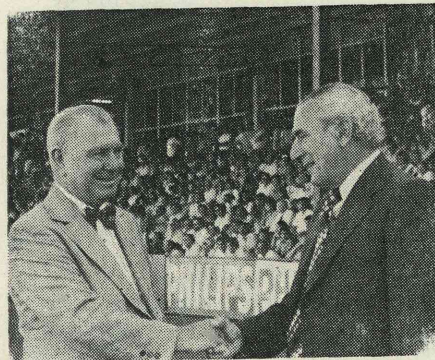

The Trust, which runs the soccer headquarters complex, is considering the proposal as one of a number of options for the future development of Perry Park.

It is understood very preliminary quotes have been sought on the cost of converting the soccer field to an all weather sporting surface — which would be the first artificial sporting field in Queensland.

QSF Trust chairman, Ald. Ian Brusasco, stressed this week that any decision on the installation of plastic grass was still a long way off and would be dependent on several outside factors.

The most prominent of these is whether Brisbane is successful in its bid to stage the 1992 Olympic Games.

Under the Games proposal, soccer is earmarked for Lang Park. But a venue must be decided for hockey, which under international rules, must be played on an artificial surface.

The late Bill Waddell (left) is congratulated by Ian Brusasco after the opening of the grandstand extensions in 1979. The awning was the last major development done at Soccer Headquarters.

Brusasco confirmed that if Perry Park went plastic, it almost certainly would be in conjunction with the Queensland Hockey Association.

The QSF Trust is committed to formulate a development plan for Perry Park, as by next year the existing bank over-draft on the complex will be wiped. Therefore funds will be available to upgrade the complex.

"There is a lot of maintenance to be done, but that aside, the Trust must sit down soon and look where we are going. We are limited in a certain extent in that Perry Park is a Council lease, but if the Council is looking to stage the Olympics then it must look to utilise grounds like Perry Park," Brusasco said.

Although soccer has had an established headquarters for longer than some of the other codes, the sport is being left behind in terms of developing its ground.

Lang Park is now a world standard arena and the Queensland Rugby Union has recently announced plans to develop Ballymore into a multi-million dollar sporting complex.

The Queensland Australian Football League this week also revealed its plans to build a headquarters at Boondall.

"The Ballymore Bears type of development in conjunction with private developers has never been considered because of our lease arrangement, but the idea of getting other sports to Perry Park is not only being considered but has been done in the past," Brusasco said.

The potential of Perry Park is enormous. The developed section of the ground represents only a portion of the area defined by the lease.

With approval, development could take over the area presently occupied by storage sheds on the eastern side of the field.

GO SOCCER EDITORIAL

By Editor, GEOFF STEAD

Soccer, and those involved in the game, are often among those first to criticise the code.

This unfortunate trait seems to have become all too common in our game and sometimes perhaps we do not appreciate or give due credit, to what we have or have achieved. The Ampol State Cup is a prime example.

The competition is the longest running statewide knockout Cup, of any football code. The Ampol Cup encompasses sides from as far as Toowoomba to Mount Isa. It gives the opportunity for players in almost every part of the state to taste top Cup competition.

Anyone at Perry Park last weekend would have seen the high regard and importance placed on a good Cup run by country folk. Bundaberg brought three coach loads of spectators to Brisbane last week and helped make semi-final day one of the most successful promotions at Perry Park this season.

Sunnyside too have shown what the Cup is all about. They have thrown off indifferent Intermediate League form to fight their way to the final. Similarly North Star embody the competitive spirit among Premier League clubs to win the prized trophy.

The Ampol Cup is no longer a season "bonus". By the sheer amount of prize-money involved — $15000 and $6000 to the winner — it has to be a key part of a club's season plan.

Ampol Petroleum must be thanked for their continual support of the competition and perhaps it is about time we started boasting to other sports about our state competition — which is the equal, if not better, than those in other codes. After last weekend, Queensland soccer has every reason to be proud of its Ampol Cup.

Similarly, some have taken for granted the achievement of the Australian Youth and under 16 teams in qualifying for the world titles which will be held in Russia and China over the next month.

Our efforts in qualifying should not be taken for granted. From more than 130 soccer-playing nations, we have proved we are among the top 16 in the world. At youth level, this will be our third consecutive finals — and we are yet to be placed lower than ninth.

Rather than knocking the code, next be proud of what soccer has achieved and use successes like the Ampol Cup and our national youth teams to promote the sport to the non-converted.

ACROSS MY DESK . . .

By QSF Secretary, ALAN VESSEY

The importance of sponsors within our code, and particularly long term and generous sponsors like Ampol Petroleum, Castlemaine Perkins and Qantas, cannot be taken too lightly.

In the case of Ampol, which after last weekend's highly successful semi-final day is a good example, the benefits are not just restricted to those in the lime-light. In 10 years the backing from Ampol Petroleum has grown from $2000 to this year's $15,000, and that is a boost for soccer Queensland-wide.

Although the $6,000 winner's cheque is a luring incentive, cash handouts go to the runners-up, the losing semi-finalists and even country zone winners. That money helps offset the costs incurred in a successful Cup run, and often is poured back into soccer. So in backing the Cup, Ampol is backing soccer on a wide scale.

The format that is adopted is as close as possible to an FA Cup style of competition and the random draw from quarter-final stage has allowed teams like Bundaberg and Sunnyside to make the most of their opportunities. The Ampol Cup is for many teams, their chance for glory.

That makes the Ampol sponsorship one that is highly valued by the federation and in turn it should be highly valued and respected by the clubs and affiliates. And that should go for all the federation's sponsors.

When a region like Bundaberg is motivated enough to bring three busloads of supporters to Brisbane for a Cup semi-final, then soccer certainly has something to be proud of. And it is because of the faith in the game shown by sponsors like Ampol.

Such sponsorships must be retained and everyone has a responsibility to support them in whatever way they can, because it will be soccer that benefits.

TED JEFFERIES

TALKING TOUGH SOCCER

After a few weeks holidaying in New Zealand, I have returned refreshed and eager to tackle the remaining weeks of the season — but I wish the news I have brought back for Frank Arok was as pleasant.

After watching several games of football in the Shaky Isles, I am convinced the Kiwis will be harder than ever to beat in our forthcoming World Cup qualifying games.

Arok seems more concerned about Israel, and even foolishly has talked about Wales, Scotland or Spain, but I fear New Zealand could be our stumbling block again.

Their competition is not as well organised as is our National League, nor are their teams of the standard of say South Melbourne, Sydney Croatia or Sydney City. But there are quite a few very talented players who could really test the Socceroos. Then of course Kiwi coach Ken Fallon is hoping to call on players like Ricki Herbert and the Rufer brothers Shane and Wynton, who are playing overseas.

These players combined with familiar names like Steve Sumner, Clint Gosling, Duncan Cole, Allan Boath and Peter Simonsen suggests that come World Cup time, the Kiwis will be a formidable outfit.

Soccer boomed in New Zealand after the national team reached the World Cup finals in 1982.

Top New Zealand officials told me that boom has since subsided, and some even admit perhaps it was not exploited enough. But now there is a new challenge.

The fine showing by the country's rugby league team against the Kangaroos was all the talk throughout New Zealand and now soccer authorities, and the players, believe to maintain their standing among Kiwi sporting fans, they too must beat the Australians.

That opening clash on September 21 at Auckland, and the Australians will find the field much softer than anything they have played on this season, is set to be a beauty.

Finally, many thanks to TAA's Alex McGill and Rex Kirkham of Qantas for helping organise my mid-season "spying mission" to New Zealand.

BILLY'S BULLETIN BOARD

The local media may have written us off for a semi-final berth in the NSL, but then they all tipped Ipswich United to win the local treble too.

I still think come August 25, when Ron Millman will be making Irish spaghetti in a frypan????? rather than playing in the Ampol Cup final, given a bit of luck we could still be playing in our knockout semi-final.

But irrespective of where we finish in the table, I reckon Lions are a good bet of winning at least one honour this season.

I reckon John Stewart is a cert for the NSL Rothman's medal. He has been a tremendous leader and a great player this season and would be a worthy winner for Australian soccer.

Hopefully the voting for the award is not "weighted" as have been some National League awards in the past. Our good friends from Adelaide seem to be the best at helping votes constantly on the one person to push them ahead of the others.

And from what we have seen of the Adelaide teams this season, it would be the only way they could win anything.

I guess I owe my good one-kilogram-lighter friend Alan Vessey an apology. He tells me the reason the QSF has delayed naming the eligibility rules is because it is waiting on certain information from the NSL. I understand the number of appearances this season could be the deciding factor. After my serve last week, I am told Mr. B. is now threatening to impose a weight limit as well — just to ensure I don't get a Premier League run this season.

SOCCERWORLD

Derek Dougan, the man who helped save Wolverhampton Wanderers from collapse two years ago, has joined the long list of creditors trying to close down the club. Dougan, who resigned as club chairman in January has now joined the list of petitioners behind winding up orders that could result in the closure of the struggling club. And in further bad news for Wolverhampton, their shirts have virtually be torn off their backs. The clubs strips were plastered with a sponsor's name, but now the sponsor has pulled out of the deal, rendering the shirts useless.

The crucial European group seven match between Wales and Scotland will now be played at Ninian Park Cardiff and not the Cardiff Arms Rugby Union ground.

The Welsh FA wanted to take the game to the National Stadium where a 62,000 crowd would have brought profits of three quarters of a million dollars, but the Welsh Rugby Union vetoed the proposal following the tragedy in Brussels. Ninian Park has half the capacity of the Rugby ground and now to ensure the match is still a money spinner for the financially troubled Welsh FA, seat prices have been doubled.

The Bulgarian Football Association has banned for life five players including two internationals and suspended four others following a brawl in the country's Cup final between Levski Spartak, the police team and CSKA Sofia, which is run by the army. The banned internationals are goalkeeper Borislav Mikhailov and defender Plamen Nikolov from Levski. Their team-mates Emil Velez and Emil Spassov were also outed for life along with CSKA player Khristo Stoichev.

Both clubs were disbanded on government orders after a violent brawling game in which players swapped punches and intimidated the referee. The match was won 2-1 by CSKA, but the government has ordered that the Cup be withheld.

NOT JUST BLACK AND WHITE

THE REFEREES' POINT OF VIEW . . .

by "WHISTLER"

It's about time clubs realise that referees don't make the laws of the game — they only enforce the laws that exist.

And law is quite specific about the way a referee should handle injuries on the field. The law says we should stop the game if a player has been seriously injured and have the player removed from the field as soon as possible. The law further says the game should not be stopped if a player is slightly injured and any player who is able to go to the touchline should not be treated on the field.

The law infers that the treatment of injuries is in the hands of the referee. Therefore it is up to the referee to decide how serious the injury is. This may not please too many "medics" on the sidelines, but that's the way the law reads. If you don't think the law is right . . . Then change the law, don't blame the referee on the day.

It must be remembered that somebody has to make the decision and while the top clubs have strappers etc, in the lower divisions it is whoever happens to be sitting next to the bucket. The laws are designed to cover all divisions of the game, not just the fortunate clubs. It's an awesome responsibility that I am sure most referees would rather not have but at this stage we are stuck with the job and must make the best of it.

How many times do you see a player slightly injured being told to lie down by his team-mates? Everyone then gets upset when the referee refuses to stop the game, noting that the player could have walked to the sideline for treatment. How many times, with one of their team-mates lying injured, do you see players continue playing rather than kick the ball out, and still demanding the referee acknowledge their injured colleague.

I don't believe a game should be stopped or treatment allowed for a player who has cramp. A player can usually solve that problem himself or go to the sideline. Too many players go down and demand treatment for very minor knocks. It is these players who set the standard for a referee to judge by.

Sometimes a more serious injury is given scant attention by the referee as he has to deal with very minor incidents throughout a game. I know its not the perfect system but until someone finds a better one, and changes the law, it's what we are stuck with.

Clubs would do better to instruct players to go to the sidelines if they need treatment, rather than abuse the referee when he won't stop a game.

Just a final few words to all the knockers out there . . . "Get off Gordon Nicholson's back." Reports I read in the press this week made me sick. If these clubs spent as much energy bitching about the performances (or should I say lack of them) from their own players, then maybe relegation wouldn't be staring them in the face. One club has so far blamed everybody in the game (and particularly referees) except their own players for the plight they are in.

Dear Sir,

It is about time someone spoke up for the referees, who are only acting on a request to give up their time to blow the whistle.

It seems we have been held up, held down, sandbagged, walked upon, set upon, flattened out and squeezed by the soccer public, the supporters, the coaches, the strappers and every club or organisation that the inventive mind of soccer can think of to extract what I may not have in my possession — the corner kick, the free kick, the play on, the penalty kick, the perfect cross or even the double cross.

The soccer public has governed our referees' business to a stage where we don't know who runs it. I am inspected, suspected, examined and re-examined, informed, required and commanded so much that I don't know who I am, where I am or why I am a referee at all.

All that I know is that I am supposed to be an inexhaustable source of player control, public control and coaches control. And because I will not go out on the soccer field and give away penalties, I am cussed, discussed boycotted, talked to, talked about, lied about, held up, hung up, rung up, robbed and darn near ruined. All for taking the time to do the hardest job in the game.

The reason referees are clinging to the job is that no-one else wants to do it. But it's a worry each week. You just don't know what the devil is going to happen next.

GEORGE DANEN,
Bulimba.

BRISBANE SOUTH TABLES NEXT WEEK

THE SYD SHOT REPORT . . .

The Ridge Premier's did it again a week ago with another fine display of effort from all in the 1-0 win over Coalstars — which now gives us a little breathing space over Olympic.

But we cannot sit on our laurels as we have a tough run home in the remaining games, with only two out of the last six at home.

The Premier Reserves are still in with a good chance of winning the League, trailing the leaders, Thistle, by only a point in one of the closest divisions I have seen for years. Only three points separate the first seven teams.

The Premier Colts are slowly climbing up the table after an indifferent start to the season. The injection of Garth Wilson has made a big difference as did keeper Graham Pratt. They have helped settle down some of the younger players like Shane Williams, Eddie Jenner, Mike Butchard, Orden Nikolouski and Andrew Hill.

Unfortunately the lads were knocked out of the Qantas Cup last Tuesday by Brighton Div. One 3-1, but were no way disgraced in a hard fought match with Gerry Murphy having a top game and captain Robbie Butchard leading his team as always with a strong game.

The quiet achievers, the 5th Division, carved out a 2-1 win over Logan City on Saturday with goals in the second half by Geoff Stead and Steve Musgrove. This win just about cemented a top four spot for Jim Webb and his lads who are still in with a good chance of taking the number one spot. One player who really impressed was defender Brian Keays.

Meanwhile the Friday night Commercial League are firing on all cylinders after a good win last Friday against Prob. I think coach Nick Griffin said the lads were now running third in the league and they should advance into the next round of the Cup this coming Friday night at the Ridge (K.O. 7.30)

Sorry to hear one of our up and coming Juniors, Chris Coe, broke his leg last weekend in an under 14 game against Darra. We all wish you a speedy recovery Chris.

A couple of years ago we used to give out a "mug of the week" award. Well last Thursday night it would have been won hands down by coach Brian Addison. Trying to get home from the city he found himself on a train to Wynnum.

ANNERLEY ANALYSIS

By BILL WILLIAMS

With the event that our Intermediate and Reserves had a holiday from the fixtures, their positions on the tables are very pleasing to the club and we are proud of them both. We present the 4th Divisions Report:

4th Division v Bayside at Lota:

A positive shot from Alan Evans after 10 minutes was just too high, and Phil Hurst put a left foot shot wide 10 minutes later. Then Craig Dakers missed a chance from in front, and Steele Lennon forced a finger tip save from the Bayside keeper.

In spite of all this we could not find the net until five minutes from the break when a good corner from Craig Dakers found Phil Hurst's head and we were in the lead. Right on half time we scored again from a scramble in front and we gave Tony Gibbs credit for the goal.

Things did not go well early in the second half, and yellow cards to keeper, Dave Forsyth and defender Brian Rogers did not help.

It was compensated however, by a good goal by Alan Evans from a through ball to put us three clear. About eight minutes to go and Craig Dakers made it four with a good individual effort.

Another good win in a tough game. Part of the penalty of being on top is that the lower teams have little to lose but plenty to gain if they can knock you over. Alan Evans and Tim Reid were among the best with Neil Lumley, Man of the Match.

The 6th Division came within a whisker to win against Lions but a last minute goal by Lions drew the game 2-2. Goals were scored by John Di Bartolomeo and James Perry with James being named Man of the Match.

PREMIER LEAGUE — ROUND 13 GRANGE T. v OLYMPIC UTD.

Lanham Park, Saturday, 7 p.m.

Referee: BARRY POWER

This match could well herald the return to Premier League of dual Rothman's medal winner Ken Swan.

Swan appeared in the lower divisions for Thistle last week and it would not surprise if the club thrust him back into the top side as it struggles to hold onto a top four berth.

And the presence of the hard-working Swan will spell bad news for Olympic. The midfield combination of Swan and Steve Dolan suddenly gives Thistle a formidable look and the Lanham Parkers will definitely be much stronger than when Acacia Ridge rolled them a fortnight ago.

The championship is not beyond Thistle but they must start their run now. But if the Grange club is keen for points, Olympic is desperate. They are now three points adrift at the bottom and firming as favourites for relegation as each week passes. The corresponding first round tie ended in a 2-2 draw,

The Tigers really roared when they took apart Acacia Ridge in the first round.

East's put four past the Ridge for the biggest win of the round, and could have scored more.

Billy Williamson netted two of the four and is the key to any success for the Tigers this year. At his best Williamson takes the pressure off playmaker Phil Thompson, which then allows the former Queensland representative to dictate midfield terms. But East's should not be expecting such an easy run this time around.

The Ridge have won three of the past four matches, including the last two on the trot. There has been not a great deal of style in the victories, but certainly plenty of effort.

Confidence has been re-charged in Brian Addison's side, and some have even dared to suggest a final four place is still in the reckoning.

MT. GRAVATT v NTH. STAR

Dittmer Park, Sunday, 2.45 p.m.

Referee: BILL MONTEVERDE

TEAMS

North Star are now the only team capable of winning soccer's grand slam, but the premiership looms as their toughest target.

The Ampol Cup holders are still four points off the pace but could perfectly rectify that over the next few weeks. After Mount Gravatt their opponents are Ipswich. North Star will be on a high after their Cup semi-final win over Ipswich last weekend, but coach Iain Fagan will be attempting to get all thoughts of the Cup out of his players minds until August 25 and Cup final day at least.

But Mount Gravatt loom as formidable opponents and a real stumbling block to North Star's hopes of snatching the title.

Mt. Gravatt are always hard to beat at home and should pick up the points again.

If there has been any consistency in the Coalstars team this year, it has been their slow slide down the table.

Despite a team of name players, the results have been few and far between and the stark reality now is that Coalstars are now only a point off second last. Relegation is not a threat, at this stage, but Acacia Ridge and Olympic are playing with considerable determination. It would only need a few wins by both sides, coupled with further Coalstars inconsistency, and the Ipswich side would be in trouble.

With the players on offer at Bundamba, Brian Styles is hardly likely to let that happen.

But Taringa are a hard side to play. Their effort and enthusiasm is second to none and their defence a hard nut to crack. And with big Barry Kelso in the side now, the Rovers have a player who is likely to score at any moment. A grafting affair, where the points could be shared.

It is a little premature to suggest this clash is the championship decider, but the winner will have a head-start to the flag.

Should Ipswich win, they will edge into the lead for the first time this season. And once they are in front, Matt Carson's side will be hard to stop.

Lions' form in recent weeks has been patchy with the side possibly suffering from continual team reshuffles. But the importance of this match should bring out the best in the team. Ipswich turned in their worst performance of the season to crash out of the Ampol Cup last week, and therefore end their hopes of winning the treble. But they are unlikely to play that bad again. Now that it's out of their system, Ipswich are likely to bounce back to their usual tough-to-beat form.

But Lions will be giving it everything they've got and a draw would not surprise.
